If you wish to replace your headlight bulb with a Xenon or HID headlight kit, or install light emitting diodes or SMD bulbs in place of your interior lighting bulbs, the right light bulb size will save you a lot of money and time.In order to ensure that you have it correctly, get ahold of a Dodge Charger headlight bulb replacement guide. It contains all the things you need to have and know in order to change a broken light bulb, replace headlight bulbs, install LEDs and install a HID headlight conversion kit on your Dodge Charger.Feel free to utilize the information available. Make sure to confirm all your bulb details including the voltage usage, wattage, and size before making any changes to your Dodge Charger headlight bulbs.The Dodge Charger isn't complete without some extra bright exterior lights. There are a number of LED upgrades available on the market today. However, most comprise imitations that aren't built to the manufacturer's specifications.They may fail to either fit, work with the car's electric system or focus the hotspot in line with the beam pattern. Some of them aren't even built to last very long.One of the best LED lights that defy all odds is the SL1 LED. It's a compact light bulb that features flow-stimulated cooling, optically correct brightness, and high reliability.It's the ultimate upgrade in terms of quality standards.Aftermarket Light Bulbs: Upgrade OptionsWhen driving leisurely down the road, it goes without saying that you must be able to clearly see wherever it is you're going. Clear visibility is an important safety aspect. Sometimes, you may not be able to see clearly due to broken headlights. This could create potential dangers for you and your passengers.Fortunately, there are plenty of headlight replacement options available in the market today. These span from Dodge Charger HIDs, LEDs, and Xenon headlights. You need to replace your Dodge Charger headlights if any of them starts to dim. It's advisable that you replace both of them at the same time.Installation & DiagramsThis guide takes you through the process of replacing any bulb within the headlight assembly for the 2006-2010 Dodge Charger.Dodge Charger HeadlightLow Beam – High BeamTurn Signal & High BeamThe following are the bulb patterns you should have with you before starting the installation: High Beam Light Bulb #9005XS, Front Side Marker Light Bulb #194, Low Beam Light Bulb #9006XS, and Front Turn Signal Light Bulb #3157A.Rear of Headlight AssemblyTurn Signal / Parking Light1/4 Turn Counter Clockwise• The turn/parking signal bulb is at the edge of the headlight unit near the middle line of the vehicle.• Find its socket from behind the assembly and turn it anticlockwise to remove it.Pull Out Bulb SocketPull Out Turn Signal BulbReplace Light Bulb• Install the new #3157A bulb into the socket and rotate it clockwise to secure it.1/4 Turn ClockwiseHigh Beam HeadlightHigh Beam Bulb Connector• The high beam bulb is placed at the center of the headlight housing.• Rotate it anticlockwise by its base to remove it.1/4 Turn Counter ClockwisePull Out High Beam SocketHigh Beam Power ConnectorPry Up Connector ClipPull Out High Beam BulbSylvania #9005XS• Pry up the grey plastic clip holding the power connector in place and pull out the connector.9005X/S DOT 12V 60WInsert New High Beam BulbBulb In Headlight Assembly• Push in the new 9005XS high beam bulb and try as much not to touch the glass part.
